

Surviving September 11th

Tenth Anniversary of 9/11/2001 Memorial Edition

By Dan Holdridge

Dan Holdridge writes, “You don’t have to live through a terrorist attack to learn from one.” As a survivor of the 9/11 attack on the Pentagon, he paints a remarkable picture of family, country, and appreciation in his memoir of his heroic escape, and his road to recovery.

About the Author

(Westerly, RI) Dan Holdridge speaks around the country sharing the story of his survival of the September 11th attacks, and has close ties to the USDA and the National 4-H Organization, as well as numerous universities and corporations. He currently is the CEO of his family business, after leaving Washington D.C. after the terrorist attacks that claimed 184 of his colleagues’ lives. He still experiences many physical after-effects of the 9/11 attack, though his approach to “appreciating” everyone around him has given him a new lease on life.
